DWKMR&S is victorious in holding trucking company accountable.

In December of 2010, a DWKMR&S client was seriously injured after being ejected 60 feet from the automobile where he was riding as a passenger in the backseat. The automobile was traveling north on I-95 when it was hit from the side by a tractor trailer, and spun four times across oncoming traffic. The injuries sustained by our client were extensive. After several surgeries and three months in the hospital, our client had over $1 million dollars in medical expenses.

Bob Dellecker and Tony Sos accepted the case and immediately began to explore and investigate every possible recovery option. After resolving the claim favorably against the owner of the tractor, they fought to ensure recovery from the owner of the trailer. Initially the owner's insurance company denied the claim. Bob Dellecker and Tony Sos did not accept "no" for an answer. They dissected every section of the insurance policy in minute detail and battled for months to bring this case to trial. After further consideration, the insurance company finally offered to settle the case.

Ultimately, the firm successfully resolved the claim so that the client had the financial resources to handle his past and future medical expenses.
